JOY CARPETS BRINGS AN ELEVATED DESIGN PERSPECTIVE TO K-12 INTERIORS

New area rug introductions place thoughtful design at the foundation of learning environments.

Fort Oglethorpe, GA — Joy Carpets will showcase its newest area rug introductions for K-12 learning environments at EDspaces 2026, October 28-30 in Kansas City, Missouri. Emphasizing curated styling and purposeful design, these introductions reflect Joy's emphasis on educational interiors where the rug receives the same thoughtful consideration as the furniture, finishes, and architecture around it.

Joy Carpets' careful attention to color, pattern, and scale give school administrators, school furniture dealers, and architects and designers opportunities to create cohesive interiors with a distinct sense of place. The result is an elevated approach to design that brings warmth, character, and visual continuity to the spaces students and educators use every day.

Featured alongside the new introductions is Joy Carpets' 2026 Joy for Learning™ Lookbook, a visual resource that presents rugs within carefully styled learning environments. The Lookbook invites readers to consider how rug selection contributes to a complete interior, providing a starting point for conversations about color, furnishings, and the character of a space.

For school leaders planning a refresh, dealers developing project proposals, and A&D professionals shaping new learning environments, Joy brings a distinctive design vocabulary to elevated learning spaces. See these new introductions and more at Joy Carpets Booth# 1426.
